

'Beyond Lines' features art work produced by incarcerated artists at Danville Correctional Center, a men's medium-high security Illinois state prison. Students of the University of Illinois' Education Justice Project organized the exhibition and produced the accompanying catalogue. Their goals include challenging popular assumptions about "prison art" and stereotypes about incarcerated people generally. They warmly invite you to attend the exhibit and related events, which will be shared with the men at the prison via video.

Exhibition opening

Thursday, August 30, 6:30-8:30pm
Murphy Gallery @ the Y
on view until October 14, 2012

Please join us for related programs:

September 11, 5pm: Higher Education in Prisons
September 25, 7pm: Prisons in the Media
October 9, 5pm: Danville Writers' Symposium
October 23, 7pm: Shakespeare at Danville, screening at IPRH building
October 30, 7pm, Families of the Incarcerated, held at IPRH building

Partners in this exhibition include the University of Illinois' Education Justice Project and Books to Prisoners.

For more information and full event descriptions please visit:

www.universityymca.org/art

Art @ the Y is an initiative of the University YMCA,
1001 South Wright Street, Champaign

Beyond Lines: Limited Expressions from the Men within Danville Prison