Poems Against the Empire

by Francis A. Boyle

Professor Francis A. Boyle helping to defend Captain Doctor Yolanda-Huet Vaughn at her court-martial proceeding at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri on May 6, 1991. She was the highest ranking U.S. military officer to refuse as a matter of principle to serve in the war against Iraq by President George Bush Senior. She was later adopted as a Prisoner of Conscience by Amnesty International.

Poetry stands against any empire! The pen is always mightier than the sword! The author has spent the past five decades learning, lecturing, writing, and lawyering against the American Empire as well as against foreign empires. Set forth in this book are his poetic reflections on these experiences fighting for peace, justice, human rights and international law. The author's hope is that these poems might inspire the reader to do the same. You can do it too!
